OPEN FIGHT FOR CONFESSED SLAYERS

ASSAIL FORD'S SHOALS OFFER, ALSO COOLIDGE

Majority of Members of Agricultural Committee Sign Norris Report

URGE U. S. OPERATION Government Ownership and Operation of Huge Plant Is Proposed

Washington, June 2.—(By the A. P.)—Henry Ford's Muscle Shoals bid and the attitude of the administration toward it are denouncing in unmeasured terms by the majority report of the Senate agricultural committee which at the same time advocates the amended Norris bill for government ownership and operation.

The report, drafted by Senator Norris, Republican, Nebraska, chairman of the committee, makes repeated reference to what it terms Mr. Ford's withdrawal as a candidate for President and his decision to support President Coolidge and assails in particular the proposal to replace the Gorgas steam power plant sold to the Alabama Power Company for $3,472,462.40.

"When the sale of the Gorgas steam plant," the report says, "was made by the Secretary of War in which I have said he simply carried out the contract made by his predecessor, Mr. Ford, who was at that time a candidate for President of the United States, became exceedingly angry and condemned the Secretary of War and through him, the administration, in unmeasured and unbecoming terms."

"To appease his anger, a vacillating administration publicly announced that the amount received for the Gorgas plant would be credited upon the $5,000,000 which Mr. Ford agreed to pay for Muscle Shoals in case his bid was accepted by Congress."

"This kindly favor, perhaps superinduced by other considerations, so pleased Mr. Ford that his ardent at the administration was not only turned into love and admiration, but he became so violently friendly that he himself withdrew as a candidate for President and announced his support of the executive who had made such a liberal concession."

Carries Out Idea
The House Bill, the report says, carries out the idea of the President in reference to the sale of a Gorgas plant and directs the Secretary of War to construct a steam power plant of 40,000 horsepower in the river, on which the Gorgas plant is situated, upon land to be obtained by purchase or condemnation and to purchase or condemn a right-of-way there, to Muscle Shoals, and turn it over to the Ford corporation.

"This additional gift ought to satisfy Mr. Ford and keep him good natured at least until after election. No one has ever offered an excuse for directing the Secretary of War to condemn private property and pay for it out of the public funds, in order to turn it over to a private corporation to be used for the sole benefit of that corporation," says the report. "As far as I know this is the first time such a thing has ever been attempted."

"This proposed new plant, like the old one at Gorgas, has no connection with Muscle Shoals. It will be, however, a very valuable acquisition to the Ford corporation. It will, in effect, make him a gift of a steam power plant located at the mouth of a coal mine. It ought to go a great ways in bringing satisfaction to any person who possesses a mania for great wealth and commercial power."

Charge Propaganda
Propaganda favoring Ford's bid, the report says, "has been spread over the country from two quarters—one centering in real estate speculation and the other being directed to the farmers who, it asserts, have been led to believe that definite assurance has been given that the price of fertilizer will be cut in half if Mr. Ford gets Muscle Shoals."

The Washington representative of one of the largest farm organizations in the United States has been actively engaged in spreading this propaganda, the report alleges, adding that while drawing a salary from the farmers of America he is carefully feeding them deceptive literature tending to mislead them into Mr. Ford's camp."

HELD ON CHECK CHARGE
Elgin, N. D., June 2.—The sheriff of Mercer county dropped into Elgin and hung around town all day until evening, when he arrested Hubert Sandau, who resides about seven miles northeast of this city, for issuing a number of checks on a bank in that county without any funds therein. He was taken to Mercer county by the sheriff to stand trial at the next term of the district court.

STANDARD OIL CASE SOON TO BE IN COURT

$75,000 Income Tax Is Involved in the Dispute in Federal Court

Hearing will be held in federal court before Judge Andrew Miller soon in the law suit involving the efforts of the state to collect about $75,000 additional income tax from the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, according to C. C. Converse, state tax commissioner.

The present state tax commissioner reviewed the Standard Oil Company's income tax reports for the years 1919, 1920 and 1921, when the tax was assessed by the state tax commissioner's office when George E. Wallace held office. The present state tax commissioner holds that the oil company assessments were too low.

The distinction which is to be the bone of contention in the courts is that the Standard Oil Company claimed that the amount of income which the state can reach is determined by subtracting the wholesale price of the gasoline at the refineries from the retail price in North Dakota, while the state tax commissioner claims that the proper method of computing the income on which the tax is levied is by subtracting from the sales price the actual cost to the Standard Oil Company of refining the gasoline. The difference is approximately $75,000 in income tax.

The state tax commissioner proceeded to assess the tax on this basis, and the Standard Oil Company brought suit to enjoin collection. Several state officials were named defendants.

DRY AGENTS IN GRANT COUNTY

LONG SEARCH LODGED IN JAIL HERE
The county jail housed a prisoner here over Sunday who had learned what "the long arm of the law" means when the federal government sets out after a man.

C., paused on his way back from Vancouver, British Columbia, with the prisoner. The Washington police, operated by the federal government, have been after Severn most of the time for two years.

Arrested in July, 1922, on a charge of wholesaling narcotics, Eustace succeeded in having his bond lowered from $10,000 to $3,000 after having been indicted by a federal grand jury.

Marks County Recovery

Reopening of the State Bank of Hannah in Cavalier county and the Michigan City Bank of Michigan City was announced today by State Examiner Gilbert Semington.

The State Bank of Hannah has a capital of $40,000, surplus of $8,000 and deposits of $300,000 and has been under special deposit order since the time of its suspension last October. The reopening of this bank is regarded as especially important as showing the marked improvement of the situation in Cavalier county.

Cavalier county was especially hard hit last fall in the epidemic of bank closings, and is making fine progress in getting the banks there reopened. The reopening of the fourth bank to reopen in that county within the past several weeks. C. B. McMillan is president and M. J. Dixon is cashier of the Hannah bank.

The Michigan City Bank, under suspension since December 11, has deposits of $138,000. Mr. Semington said a number of banks have about completed arrangements for reopening and he expects that within a week three more will be in shape to resume their usual banking business.

In a tour through the northern part of the state the examiner found that conditions are in better shape than for years, he said today, that banks are gradually building up their reserves, that farmers are not making the number of loans for cropping purposes as heretofore, all indicating that real diversification in farming is actually here, and that banks are being relieved from having to make spring advances in the amounts that were common a few years ago.

ADJOURNMENT ON JUNE 7 IS VOTED TODAY

Resolution Providing For Sine
Die Adjournment Is Passed,
221 to 157

SOME OBJECTIONS

Proposal Made For Recess of Month or Six Weeks and Continued Session

Washington, June 2.—While the House was voting today to adjourn Saturday, Senator La Follette, Republican, Wisconsin, opened a fight to have Congress resume its session after the national political conventions.

The Wisconsin Senator, leader of the insurgent group, introduced a resolution under which a recess would be taken until July 9, after which a specific agricultural and transportation program would be embarked upon.

Washington, June 2.—(By the A. P.)—A resolution providing for sine die adjournment of Congress at 7 p. m. next Saturday was adopted by the House of Representatives by a vote of 221 to 157 today. It was offered by Representative Longworth, the Republican leader.

Appeal for a recess for a month or six weeks and a return to consider a definitely outlined program, was being discussed meantime by members of the Senate farm bloc and some progressives. It was expected the suggestion would be introduced in the Senate as a substitute for the adjournment resolution.

The opposition in the House came chiefly from Democrats, Republican insurgents and other Republicans from the middle and far west who have been demanding action on farm, reclamation and railroad legislation.

TABERTSLAYER WINS BATTLE

Is Granted New Trial in Florida Court on Murder
Charge

Tallahassee, Fla., June 2.—Thomas W. Higginbotham, convict "whipping boss," who was convicted in circuit court here last July of second degree murder and sentenced to 20 years imprisonment as an outgrowth of the death of Martin Tabor of North Dakota, was granted a new trial in a decision handed down late Saturday by the Florida Supreme court, reversing the lower court.

The Supreme court held that the circuit judge erred in granting a change of venue for trial from Dixie county to Columbia county, on motion by the state and over the defense objection without first having made an actual test as to whether it practically was impossible to procure an impartial jury in Dixie county.

Higginbotham was convicted July 27 last on an indictment charging him with having caused the death of Tabert as the result of a beating administered while the North Dakota man was serving a term in the Putnam Lumber company's convict camp where Tabert had been sent from Leavenworth for three months for beating his way on a freight train. Following his conviction, counsel for Higginbotham appealed the case to the Supreme court alleging that 38 errors were made by the circuit court in trying the case.

Tomlinson and Beuchamp were fishing when it was noticed the boat was beginning to fill. They started to row feverishly for shore, but the boat sank and Tomlinson disappeared. Hanging on the sides of the boat with a bulldog tenacity, with almost his entire body submerged in the chilly waters, Beuchamp yelled for help, which finally came at 6:23 Sunday morning when two fishermen cited his plight.

The body of Tomlinson has not been recovered.

ATTORNEYS ASK PERMISSION TO SEE PAIR HELD

Millionaire Fathers of Chicago Youths Engage Counsel for Their Defense

IDENTIFY CLOTHING

Confession Is Substantiated
With the Aid of the Pair,
States Attorney Says

Chicago, June 2.—(By the A. P.)—States Attorney Cogan announced today as attorneys began their battle in behalf of Nathan Leopold and Richard Loeb, confessed kidnapers and slayers of 14-year-old Robert Franks, that he would seek two grand jury indictments against them tomorrow.

The states attorneys announced came at the moment that petitions for writs of habeas corpus were presented to Chief Justice Caverly of the criminal court, by counsel employed by the millionaire fathers of Leopold and Loeb. The court made the writ returnable forthwith and the prisoners were taken immediately into court.

The legal battle into which the millions, estimated as high as $250,000, of the Leopolds and Loeb will be thrown in an effort to save the boys from the gallows is intended merely to permit legal counsel to consult with them. The attorneys say they do not expect to free them.

Indictments charging kidnapping for ransom and for murder, both punishable by death as provided by the Illinois criminal code, will be asked, Mr. Cogan said.

Chief Justice Caverly continued the hearing on the writ until June 6 and ordered the boys sent to jail without bond, placing them in the custody of the sheriff as sought by the defense attorneys.

The inquest into the death of the Franks lad also was set for today.

How Boy Was Killed
Confessions made public by States Attorney Cogan said the child was enticed into an automobile owned by Leopold and Loeb on the afternoon of Wednesday, May 21, struck on the head with a heavy blanket with a gag rammed down his throat and left to die. His body, found some five hours later, according to confession by Leopold and Loeb, was stripped and jammed into a culvert in a wild, isolated spot on the far south side where it accidentally was found the next morning by a passing laborer.

The youthful kidnaper-slayers, who claimed they killed the lad through a spirit of adventure as well as for the $10,000 ransom they demanded of Jacob M. Franks, the father, gained a sensational last night—that of being relegated alone to the police precinct cells with special guards to keep them from committing suicide.

Accompanied by detectives and newspaper men Mr. Cogan took the boys over the ground they had traversed with the body of young Franks in their rented automobile and later as they disposed of tell-tale clothing; lap-ropes, cold chisel and the typewriter on which Leopold admitted he composed the ransom letter.

Everywhere crowds quickly gathered. Underdressed by the curious youths aided in piecing together the substantiating evidence which, with their confessions, Mr. Cogan regards as sufficient to gain the hangman's noose.

Thinks He'll Be Saved
Young Leopold, whose father is a manufacturer and a lake sporting magnate, is sure according to Mr. Cogan and newspaper men who heard the conversation, that money can do anything and through use of it he hopes to avoid the gallows.

"You know," he said, "we have got a lot of dough. I don't know how many millions. How about fixing this thing up by getting to a few jurors?"

Mr. Cogan merely smiled in reply. Loeb, son of the vice-president of Sears-Roebuck and Company, is less sure but hopeful.

Talk to Parents
The young men were permitted to telephone their parents last night. Loeb, talking with his mother, assured her repeatedly that he had committed the murder, insisting he could do and had done such a deed.

Young Leopold assumed a business-like conversation. His father is ill. His mother died. "Send me a change of clothes and isn't it about time you employed an attorney for me?" he was reported as having said.

"Yes, I did it. We have got to face it and make the best of it."

Mrs. Franks, mother of the slain boy, is reported in a serious condition. The lad was a cousin once removed of Loeb and Mrs. Franks suffered a relapse when she was informed who had killed her boy. She had not recovered from the blow of Robert's death. The police established a zone of quiet around the Franks residence.

All day yesterday the streets in the vicinity of the Franks, Leopold and Loeb homes were crowded by slowly moving motor cars containing sightseers.

Springtime Talk

Mistress Springtime had been around for some time now. She had had quite a beautiful time. She did enjoy herself so much! "Do you know," she said one day to Billie Brownie, "I had a little chat with Winter as I came along."

"Now, I must be going," Winter said.

"And then you know he would tell me some more interesting news, and I would stay a little longer."

"Told me of a little longer," Winter said.

"The time just hurried along. You know how it is? If you are having a good time you can't bear to leave and the time passes by so quickly."

"He told me of the beautiful evergreen trees and the snow all about and of the lovely dark green and white pictures they made between them. He said it was so beautiful!"

"And he told me of the patches of ice in a river which began to break up during the warm days—when they heard I'd soon be along, so he said—and how the sea gulls sat upon these patches of ice and went for river rides!"

"He told me, too, of the sweet and the bread crumbs and bits of apple and grain which boys and girls had put around for the downy woodpeckers, nuthatches and chickadees who had stayed about all winter."

"He said it means so much to the birds to be helped in this way."

"He told me it was just as though people went to a place where they could find hardly anything to eat, but where the ones who had lived there for years had goodies stored away and shared these goodies with the new comers."

"Then he told me of a little girl who had picked some pussy willows just as I was about to arrive. She had put them in some water in the house. And they knew about blossoming out-of-doors and still wanted to do the same, and so the pussy willows became feathery and lovely, and on some of the twigs she had picked little green leaves appeared."

"He chatted and he chatted and every once in awhile there would be a little pause in the conversation and I would say,

"I really must be hurrying on."

"Then he would tell me more of his news."

"But at last I really said I had to be leaving, and so along I came, and so here I am."

"As I came the little crocus flowers peeped up above the earth, and said,

"Hello, dear Mistress Springtime."

"And oh, Billie Brownie, you have no idea how wonderful it is to have that first greeting coming out of the earth where there is not another sign of anything green and where everything looks so dismal."

"The crocus family just made me feel I was so glad I had come after all for at first I was thinking of Winter's interesting tale and almost wished I hadn't hurried along."

"Some of them were picked and sent to some one who had no spring flowers, but they had already greeted me, and I was glad they were to greet some one else."

"They kept fresh, too, to greet others."

"And then the green buds all began to burst open to greet me and the yellow forsythia, and the dogwood and all of the other lovely blossoms."

"And now it seems as though I were almost a real race—as though Summer had entered into the race, too, as though she were trying to catch up to me."

"She is pretty far behind just now, but she's moving very quickly, and Billie Brownie, I wouldn't be surprised if before long she did catch up with me."

"She has a way of doing that, you know!"

N. D. BIRD NOTES
By O. A. Stevens

North Dakota Agricultural College and State Secretary of Audubon Society.

Fargo, N. D., June 2.—Where are the kingbirds, the writer has been wondering? Are they still delayed by the cold weather or are they less common than usual? To date of writing at least he had not seen any, although his average dates for the first seen are May 17 for the common kingbird and May 14 for the Arkansas kingbird. Only two reports of the former had been received: Bismarck May 11 and Wahpeton May 22. The Arkansas kingbird was seen at Arnegard May 10, Bismarck and Jamestown May 11, Carrington May 17, Wahpeton May 22.

The kingbirds feed chiefly upon flying insects and consequently do not return until the weather has become warm enough for such to be abundant. Two other members of the family also are among our late comers, the wood pewee and the least flycatcher.

The former is characteristic of the wooded regions of eastern United States but less common with us. The latter, also known as checker from its sharp call note, is more common through the plains region and a common summer bird of our groves. The wood pewee was reported at Jamestown May 20 and 22, the least flycatcher at Wahpeton May 19 and Fargo May 16.

Another member of the family, the crested flycatcher is seen in the state to a limited extent only and had not been reported at this date. This bird nests in hollows in trees and is famous for its use of snake skins in its nests.

The phoebe, yet another of the flycatchers, arrives considerably earlier, being reported this year from April 16 to May 4. Perhaps its earlier arrival is to be accounted for by the fact that it frequents the river banks and that considerable numbers of insects are found there near the ground on warm days, although they are not yet flying high in the air where the kingbirds hunt.

In contrast to such birds as the song sparrows, horned larks and crested owls which are represented by a large number of slightly different geographical races in different parts of the country, the kingbirds are the same the country over. They spend the winter in Central America or northern South America and in summer range over a large part of North America but are most common east of the Rocky Mountains. The Arkansas kingbird winters in Mexico and Central America and is a western bird, southeastern Minnesota being about as far east as it is seen regularly.

The goldfinch was first seen by the writer on May 21 and was reported from Wahpeton May 24. No other records received at date of writing. The movements of these birds seem somewhat puzzling. They are listed as wintering as far north as the northern states eastward, and to some extent in southern Minnesota. They belong to the seed eaters so many of which are more hardy than the insect feeders, yet they are late in their northward journey. Perhaps the fact that they do not travel far accounts for it. They range in winter only to the Gulf Coast and in summer to southern Canada.

The Baltimore oriole, one of the best known of our late spring arrivals has been reported at Jamestown May 20, Wahpeton May 22, Fargo May 23, Catbird, Wilson warbler and redbird only from Wahpeton May 24; yellow throat at Wahpeton on the same date, also at Fargo. No reports yet have been received of night hawk, humming bird, cedar waxwing, dickcissel or cuckoo which are the principal ones remaining to complete the list for the year.

After finishing the above notes the writer took his early morning walk on Monday and was rewarded by seeing a small flock of cedar waxwings. Goldfinches and chickadees were common, also orioles and barn swallows, but no kingbirds were seen.

PEOPLE'S FORUM

SERVICE MAN'S VIEW

Editor, The Tribune:

I am getting the Tribune every evening and have often read about the bonus for the ex-servicemen. Well, I am an ex-serviceman and I am proud of it. But one thing which makes me sore is this: I went to war with the rest of the service men, leaving a good job with good pay to take a job with Uncle Sam for one dollar a day and today people say the soldiers got good pay, why should they be paid a bonus. The people who say that are the people who made millions during the war. I never heard any poor man get a bonus. We were told that our jobs would be waiting for us but when we returned others had taken our places and we were told to get out and dig for ourselves or starve or when we were needed they would call us. We don't ask for a bonus.

Marriage or Luxury?

She had everything that any woman's mind can wish for—heart's desire—but without Love.

She wanted Love—that great, sweeping, all-embracing Love—A genuine home with her Man and his children. She had to choose and freely made her choice. Then Fate—Just one of the little things that make everyday life big with tragedy—Fate brushes in, and Love again is denied, and luxury becomes even more unbearable.

A story that pictures the tremendous influence of little things in our daily lives with a clearness and sharpness that is startling in its realism.

The country asked us for more than money, it asked us for our lives. I for one would like to drop the bonus and forget about it, for I am sick and tired of reading about it. Say buddies let's give a bonus to the ones who made millions during the war and I bet the bill will pass in a hurry. What do we care for insurance? ## Would Give All for Love

By JUDY BLAIR

The heirs were assembled to hear the reading of Uncle Timothy's will, but it was pretty well known that either his nephew Harry or his niece Mary would inherit his substantial property—or more likely still it would be divided between them.

The lawyer droned on. Presently he came to it. "And the residue of my estate to be divided equally between my nephew Harry and my niece Mary."

The rest of the relatives resigned themselves to the expected.

"On condition that they shall not marry with one another."

The relatives looked up at a staid, Mary? Why, they had always detested each other; every one knew that.

"But should they marry, then the principal sum shall be forfeited in accordance with certain conditions known to my lawyers."

Here was a trap. It appeared that Harry and Mary would each receive about four thousand a year. But if they married—not a penny.

"Well, that isn't troubling me," said Harry with a laugh. He felt almost friendly to Mary. "I guess it isn't troubling you either, Mary?"

"Not so you'd notice it," Mary answered.

The relatives laughed, too. Every one had known that the two were Uncle Timothy's favorite niece and nephew. But what an absurd condition!

If they had cared for each other, and Uncle Timothy had had some special reason for not wanting them to marry, it would have been all understandable. But the mean things they used to say about each other!

It was odd, but Harry, who had never given Mary a spare thought, began to think about her quite a little after he had inherited the money. She acquired a new interest in his eyes. He met her a few weeks later at Aunt Jennie's.

"Well, not thinking of forgetting that legacy, are you, Mary?" he asked.

"It isn't worrying me," answered Mary. "Uncle Timothy must have been out of his mind."

"Quite agree with you," Harry replied.

They felt so much delight to think the legacy was safe that they began going out of their way to meet each other. At the end of three months Harry had discovered that Mary was really quite a nice girl. They had similar interests, too.

"Say, Mary, let's drop all this nonsense about hating each other, shall we?" asked Harry. "It isn't as if there was any danger of our ever coming to hate each other."

"It is growing rather tiresome," Mary agreed.

"We could have some good times together, knowing that there's no danger. How about taking in the opera Friday night?"

Mary agreed. But by the end of Friday night they knew they liked each other quite a good deal. And in a month more they couldn't keep away from each other.

"Mary, Uncle Timothy knew more than I gave him credit for."

"I guess he did, Harry."

"Why was he so set against—" "Heavens knows."

"Isn't it a pity, Mary?"

Mary gave him a look that told. They stayed away from each other for two whole weeks. Then they met by accident.

"Mary, it's no use. I love you."

"Harry, you mustn't be foolish—"

"D—n the legacy! I'm earning five thousand a year. Marry me, Mary?"

"Then let's do it."

"You'll stop caring."

"Never."

It took another week to bring her around. At the end of that time the two appeared in the lawyer's office.

"We've decided to get married—as soon as the next quarter's interest has come in," they announced.

The lawyer smiled. "No need to wait for that," he said, after he had congratulated them. "It was your Uncle Timothy's dearest wish."

"What?" exclaimed Harry and Mary together.

"The condition is—" he broke a sealed envelope that he had extracted from his safe—"if you two marry you are to become trustees of the property jointly, on behalf of—"

"Whom?"

"Your children," smiled the lawyer.

ATTORNEYS ASK PERMISSION TO SEE PAIR HELD

A young coed at the University of Chicago, where Leopold was a post-graduate law student, and Leeb a post-graduate student in history, revealed last night that on several occasions since the kidnapping and slaying Leopold had joked with her about the matter.

Once, she said, she had told Leopold that she would be a good joke for her to confess the crime and for her to claim the $50,000 reward then offered. He agreed it would be a huge joke, she said.

Confessions Agree

All portions of the confession by Leeb and Leopold agree, said Prosecutor Crowe, except as to who killed Franks. Each says that the other struck the blow with the cold chisel while each claims he was at the wheel of the rented automobile which was identical with the one they owned, but which was at home being repaired. It was just that which led to their confession, the family chauffeur spoiling an otherwise perfect alibi by informing the states attorney that the automobile was out of order and could not have been used for "joy riding" at the time claimed by both youths. When faced with that young Leeb broke down and confessed, his action soon to be followed by Leopold.

It was reported that the boys, friends throughout their most unusual college career, had broken and each was reviling the other for breaking under questioning. It also was said that they nearly came to blows when brought together in the prosecutor's office for the first time since their arrest.

RANSOM LETTER FOUND

Chicago, June 2. A letter addressed to Jacob Franks, father of the murdered boy, in which there were instructions as to when and where to place the ransom money, has been found in a Pullman car in the New York yards, according to information made public by States Attorney Crowe here today.

The letter, according to States Attorney Crowe, was found in a Pullman sleeping car on the Michigan Central Railway. This car, Mr. Crowe said, had traveled through Cleveland, Cincinnati, Grand Rapids and Buffalo since leaving Chicago on May 22, the day after the Franks boy was murdered.

TO ESTABLISH PRESBYTERIAN CENTER

Should Have Center in Washington to Further Presbyterian Projects

Grand Rapids, June 2.—The establishment of an adequate Presbyterian center in Washington through the agency of the Presbyterian National Capital Commission is one of the projects furthered in the report of the general council as presented to the Presbyterian General Assembly.

Affixed to the council's report is a detailed statement by Dr. George R. Stewart of Auburn, New York, chairman of the commission, who holds that "the Presbyterian church can no longer afford to lag behind other denominations in building upon the forces and institutions of religion in the capital of our nation, which is so rapidly becoming the capital of the world."

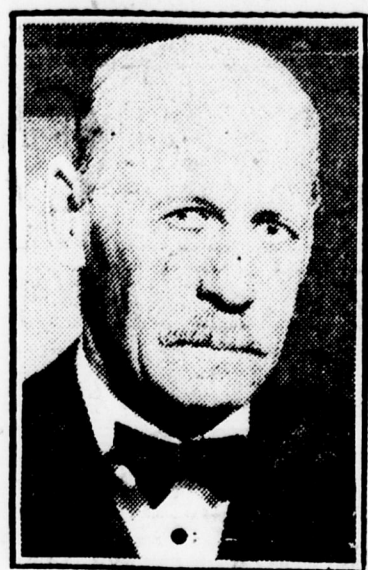

One of the suggestions considered by the commission is the proposal for a great General Assembly church in Washington, in line with the plan outlined 20 years ago by Justice Harlan and Dr. Wallace Radcliffe for construction of a Presbyterian "cathedral." Dr. Stewart's commission holds that such a church should be conspicuously located and courageously and generously financed as a monument to the zeal, liberality, foresight and faith of the Presbyterian church.

The commission offers as another suggestion a plan that the Presbyterian church should have in Washington a Presbyterian building worthy of denominational rank, which would suitably house the various board of the church and provide accommodations for local Presbyterian organizations and for the multitude of Presbyterian visitors to Washington. It urges full consideration of the desirability of this building containing an assembly hall suitable for the meetings of the General Assembly.

Still another plan outlined by the commission is an educational program, involving a great center for religious education which would justify the union of some of the Presbyterian theological seminaries and training schools and establishing a national school of religion, endowed with gifts of millions.

The Cubore carries an engine crew of only three men on any one shift. These results are common to other American motorships. The Cubore's engine is the largest Diesel type engine of American design in operation.

England is more wide-awake to the advantages of the motorship than the United States. There are ten tons of motorships building in the United Kingdom, and four are building in Germany, to one ton in the United States.

Congress to Help

Congress has now jumped into the breach with one foot. The Edmonds bill, having the support of the Shipping Board, of marine experts in general and presumably of President Coolidge has passed the House of Representatives. It authorizes the Shipping Board to use $25,000,000 to equip its vessels for foreign service with oil engines and to lend the remainder of its present construction loan fund of $66,000,000 to private owners for the same purpose. The measure is one of the few pieces of marine legislation which is expected to be passed by Congress this session.

Of the 412 vessels in the Shipping Board's active fleet only one—the William Penn—is a motorship. The conversion cost of the others would be about $50 per D. W. ton. Two results are expected from this session.

Under the present system of operation of the Shipping Board's fleet would be greatly reduced.

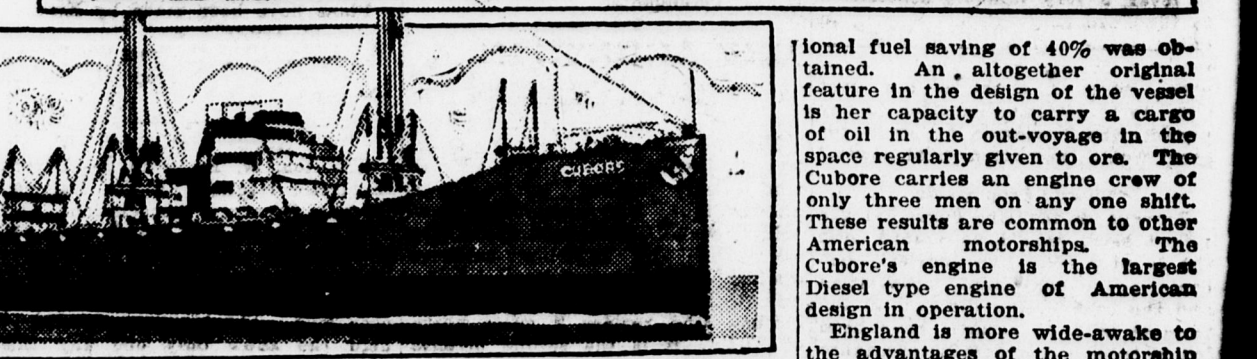

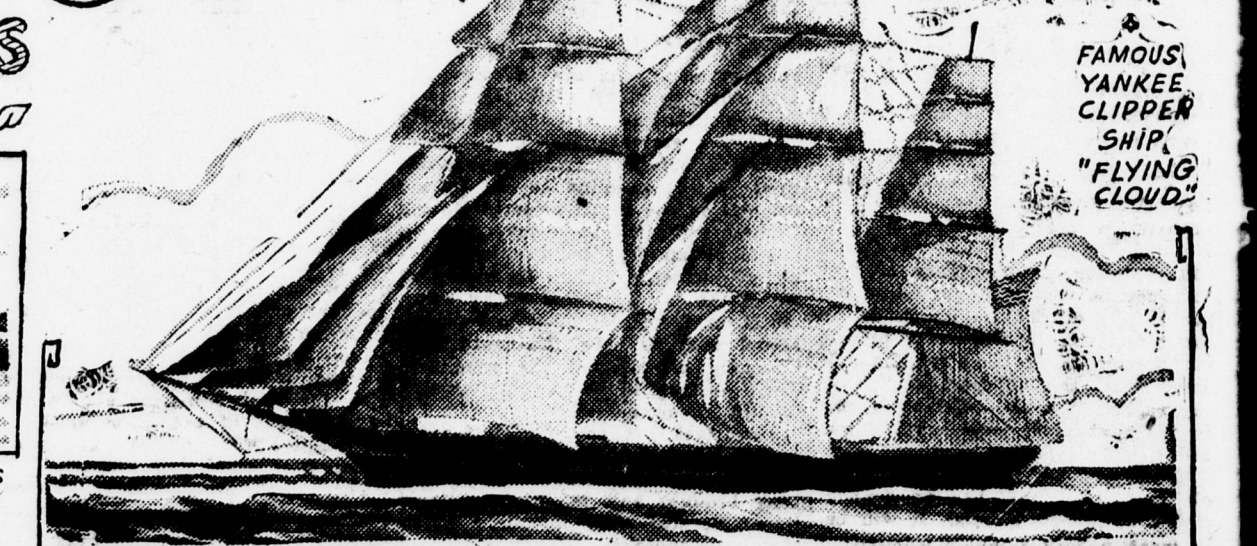

The Government ships would be made salable to private owners, with the result that a privately owned American merchant marine would be encouraged.

Of the 412 vessels in the Shipping Board's active fleet only one—the William Penn—is a motorship. The conversion cost of the others would be about $50 per D. W. ton. Two results are expected from this session.

Under the present system of operation of the Shipping Board's fleet would be greatly reduced.

The Government ships would be made salable to private owners, with the result that a privately owned American merchant marine would be encouraged.

Would Give All for Love

By JUDY BLAIR

The heirs were assembled to hear the reading of Uncle Timothy's will, but it was pretty well known that either his nephew Harry or his niece Mary would inherit his substantial property—or more likely still it would be divided between them.

The lawyer droned on. Presently he came to it: "And the residue of my estate to be divided equally between my nephew Harry and my niece Mary."

The rest of the relatives resigned themselves to the expected. "On condition that they shall not marry with one another."

The relatives looked up with a start. Harry? Why, they had always detested each other; every one knew that.

"But should they marry, then the principal sum shall be forfeited to accordance with certain conditions known to my lawyers."

Here was a trap. It appeared that Harry and Mary would each receive about four thousand a year. But if they married—not a penny.

"Well, that isn't troubling me," said Harry with a laugh. "I guess it isn't troubling you either, Mary?"

"Not so you'd notice it," Mary answered.

The relatives laughed, too. Every one had known that the two were Uncle Timothy's favorite niece and nephew. But what an absurd condition!

If they had cared for each other, and Uncle Timothy had had some special reason for not wanting them to marry, it would have been all understandable. But the mean things they used to say about each other!

It was odd, but Harry, who had never given Mary a spare thought, began to think about her quite a little after he had inherited the money. She acquired a new interest in his eyes. He met her a few weeks later at Aunt Jemima's.

"Well, not thinking of forgetting that legacy, are you, Mary?" he asked.

"It isn't worrying me," answered Mary. "Uncle Timothy must have been of his mind."

"I quite agree with you," Harry replied.

They felt so much delight to think the legacy was safe that they began going out of their way to meet each other. At the end of three months Harry had discovered that Mary was really quite a nice girl. They had similar interests, too.

"Say, Mary, let's drop all this nonsense about hating each other, shall we?" asked Harry. "It isn't us if there was any danger of our ever caring for each other."

"It is growing rather tiresome," Mary agreed.

"We could have some good times together, knowing that there's no danger. How about taking to the opera Friday night?"

Mary agreed. But by the end of Friday night they knew they liked each other quite a good deal. And in a month more they couldn't keep away from each other.

"Mary, Uncle Timothy knew more than I gave him credit for."

"I guess he did, Harry."

"Why was he so set against—?"

"Heaven's knows," Mary said. "I'm a pity, Mary!"

Mary gave him a look that told. They stayed away from each other for two whole weeks. Then they met by accident.

"Mary, it's no use. I love you."

"Harry, you mustn't be foolish!"

"D—n the legacy! I'm earning five thousand a year. Mary me, Mary?"

Mary began crying. "It's so—so dreadful, Harry. I—I do care so much."

"Then let's do it."

"You'll stop caring."

"Never."

It took another week to bring her around. At the end of that time the two appeared in the lawyer's office.

"We've decided to get married—as soon as the next quarter's interest has come in," they announced.

The lawyer smiled. "No need to wait for that," he said, after he had congratulated them. "It was your Uncle Timothy's dearest wish."

"What?" exclaimed Harry and Mary together.

"The condition is—," he broke a sealed envelope that he had extracted from his safe. "If you two marry, you must become trustees of the property jointly, on behalf of—"

"Whom?"

"Your children," smiled the lawyer.

ATTORNEYS ASK PERMISSION TO SEE PAIR HELD

A young couple at the University of Chicago, where Leopold was a post-graduate law student, and Leah a post-graduate student in history, revealed last night that on several occasions, since the kidnapping and slaying Leopold had joked with her about the matter.

Once, she said, she had told Leopold that it would be a good joke for her to confess the crime and for her to claim the $50,000 reward then offered. He agreed it would be a huge joke, she said.

Confessions Agree All portions of the confession by Leah and Leopold agreed, said Prosecutor Crowe, except as to who had killed Frank. Each says that the other struck the blow with the cold chisel while each claims he was at the wheel of the rented automobile which was identical with the one they owned, but which was at home being repaired. It was just that which led to their confession, the family chauffeur spilling an otherwise perfect alibi by informing the states attorney that the automobile was out of order and could not have been used for "joy riding" at the time claimed by both youths. When faced with that young Loeb broke down and confessed, his action soon to be followed by Leopold.

It was reported that the boys, friends throughout their most unusual college career, had broken and each was reviling the other for breaking under questioning. It also was said that they nearly came to blows when brought together in the prosecutor's office for the first time since their arrest.

TO ESTABLISH PRESBYTERIAN CENTER

The letter, according to States Attorney Crowe, was found in a Pullman sleeper, the Michigan Central Railway. This car, Mr. Crowe said, had traveled through Cleveland, Cincinnati, Grand Rapids and Buffalo since leaving Chicago on May 22, the day after the Franks boy was murdered.

Should Have Center in Washington to Further Presbyterian Projects

Grand Rapids, June 2.—The establishment of an adequate Presbyterian center in Washington through the agency of the Presbyterian National Capital Commission is one of the projects furthered in the report of the general council as presented to the Presbyterian General Assembly.

Affixed to the council's report is a detailed statement by Dr. George H. Stewart of Auburn, New York, chairman of the commission, who holds that "the Presbyterian church can no longer afford to lag behind other denominations in building upon the forces and institutions of religion in the capital of our nation, which is so rapidly becoming the capital of the world."

One of the suggestions considered by the commission is the proposal for a great General Assembly church in Washington, in line with the plan outlined 20 years ago by Justice Harlan and Dr. Wallace Radcliffe for construction of a Presbyterian "cathedral." Dr. Stewart's commission holds that such a church should be conspicuously located and courageously and generously financed as a monument to the zeal, liberality, foresight and faith of the Presbyterian church.

The commission offers as another suggestion a plan that the Presbyterian church should have in Washington a Presbyterian building worthy of denomination, which would suitably house the various board of the church and provide accommodations for local Presbyterian organizations and for the multitude of Presbyterian visitors to Washington.

It urges full consideration of the desirability of this building containing an assembly hall suitable for the meetings of the General Assembly.

Still another plan outlined by the commission is an educational program, involving a great center for religious education which would justify the union of some of the Presbyterian theological seminaries and training schools and establishing a national school of religion, endowed with gifts of millions.

REGISTER NOW—HELP BOOST THE JUVENILE BAND

The Juvenile Band, which now comprises a membership of 55 members, this includes the a band and the present beginner's band is a perpetual and growing organization. In order that it be a growing organization, new members or recruits will be wanted as time goes on. There are cities, half as large as Bismarck, throughout this country that have Juvenile bands of over 100 members. Los Angeles has over 110 Juvenile or Grade School orchestras, comprising a total membership of 3,000 children, whose ages range from 6 to 16. There are wonderful opportunities for children to learn music and instrument-playing in most of the progressive cities of this country today—and Bismarck is no exception.

This is Registration Week for prospective members of the new beginner's class which will begin actual meetings next Saturday afternoon at 1:30 P. M. On the first day of registration there were 16 names listed, a good beginning. Let's have more!

Remember, there is no charge for instruction. All the children need is an instrument, which can be purchased very cheaply, second-hand, and the spirit and willingness to meet regularly and practice.

Mr. Sorlien will be glad to see anyone interested in joining the Juvenile Band at the Wall School between the hours of 1 and 3 P. M. any day this week. Anyone that is unable to confer with him there, can make arrangements to see him by phoning either 285 or 357-R.

She does not dread getting supper, for it is easy with the Florence Oil Range

How much of your time do you spend in the kitchen?

GETTING meals may be slow and drudgery, or it may be done quickly and in comfort. It all depends on your stove.

If you want to know just how easy cooking can be, go into a store and see how the Florence Oil Range works.

This is the way of it

Touch a match to the Asbestos Kindler and in a few moments you have an intensely hot, blue flame. It is easily regulated to any degree of heat. The flame is close up under the cooking and does not heat up the metal of the stove; the heat does not spread out into the room. Food can be baked, boiled, roasted, or fried quickly and well on this modern range.

The vapor from kerosene is what burns—a cheap and plentiful fuel. The flame is a gas flame. It does not burn from a wick.

You know what it would mean to you to have no shaking to do, no ashes or soot. But until you see the Florence you may not realize quite how good-looking a stove can be, with satiny enamel against a jet black frame.

THE STATE'S OLDEST NEWSPAPER
(Established 1873)

THE FRANKS CASE
Chicago authorities will receive the silent congratulations of citizens over the entire country for their apparent solution of the brutal murder of young Robert Franks. The crime shocked the nation, and the fact that the slayers were rich and intelligent comes as a further shock to the sensibilities of the people.

To the criminologist the case offers a rich field for study and conclusion. It offers a field of study for public leaders in all parts of the nation.

What could have moved two youths, intelligent enough to have graduated from college and to engage in post-graduate work at a University, whose fathers were wealthy, and who had a rich life to look forward to, to commit the revolting crime? The states attorney said they informed him they were moved both by a spirit of adventure to engineer a kidnapping and by a desire for the $10,000 ransom they sought.

Yet it would seem that the desire for money ought to have been the farthest thing from the minds of these young men, who doubtless enjoyed luxuries far beyond the average youth. It would seem that their intelligence would be sufficient to direct them to use other means in seeking adventure.

The United States is the country of murders. The rate of homicide in this nation astounds Europe, particularly England. Murderers often are allowed to escape with light punishment, too often set free. The number of unsolved murders in this country greatly exceeds the number in Europe.

The common explanation of the increasing rate of homicide in the nation is the growing complexity of life, the increasing tenseness of the economic struggle, the popular encouragement to the belief that wealth is the acme of success. There are students who see in the polyglot mixture of races in America a source of menace in the future.

The least the average citizen can do is to teach the value of human life, to encourage respect for the law, to insist upon strict penalties for the transgressor of our moral laws, to aid in steadying the public conscience to the end that youth may learn that maddening speed of living and gratification of selfish desire is not the goal of the worth while citizen of a community.

THE MIRAGE

Although the Leviathan, the great liner operated by the United States government, was launched after reconditioning under auspicious circumstances and with a volume of free advertising that would bring envy to the thoughts of any private merchant marine operator, a report of the Shipping Board discloses that the liner shares with other boats the huge loss of the government-owned and government-operated fleet. In the net result of the eight trials which she made during the past season, before running aground in New York harbor, her books show a loss $70,897. This is simply a loss in operation, making no allowance for interest on the million spent in making her one of the most attractively equipped ships on the ocean. Neither was any allowance made for the expenses necessitated by her accident in the harbor.

Millions of money was spent in reconditioning the Leviathan in the hope that she would counteract other losses of the government fleet. But she failed under auspicious circumstances. There does not, in view of this situation, appear to be much hope that the United States Shipping Board can continue to operate government vessels except at a loss, to be made up by taxpayers.

WIZARDS

Fogs can be dissolved by scattering electrically treated sand from airplanes, according to latest scientific belief. Government planes are experimenting around Boston.

Ed Howe once said that everybody is forever talking about the weather, but no one ever does anything about it. But it may not be altogether impossible for future man to regulate his weather materially. Some weather experts believe that we have already changed the climate in eastern states by irrigation in the west—damming up several hundred million acres of water in regions where evaporation is rapid, thus generating storm centers.

WHY

If Jefferson were alive today, what would he say to guide us? He predicted governmental corruption for a nation grown careless while too absorbed in money-getting.

Jefferson, a philosopher, thought clearly and saw far into the future because he reasoned from cause to effect. Today he'd probably say that corruption and inefficiency, wherever they rear their ugly heads in government, are the natural result of public carelessness and indifference. "External vigilance is the price of freedom."

Government is a mirror reflecting the public, as surely as a newspaper is a mirror reflecting its readers.

FLIGHT

Police in western Canada find an abandoned airplane equipped with runners for landing on ice. It was rigged out to carry heavy packages. The police think it belonged to rum-runners.

Bootlegging is the first branch of criminal activities to use the flying machine. Not much imagination is required to look ahead and picture police planes fighting machine gun battles in the air with fugitive diamond smugglers, murderers and robbers.

The flying policeman and the flying criminal are coming.

The most exciting movie in the movie world is the speaking film, which, if presented, may play havoc with our grammar.

A great demand for politeness is being caused by its shortage.

Editorial Review

Comments reproduced in this column may or may not express the opinion of The Tribune. They are presented here in order that our readers may have both sides of important issues which are being discussed in the press of the day.

FORD'S RAILWAY EXAMPLE

Henry Ford's account in World's Work of his success in operating profitably the bankrupt railway which he took over as an appendix to his motor factory was not written for the purpose of opposing the pending railway legislation in Congress. It is all the more convincing for that. The first reason for his success is that he operates his railway like his factory. His workers do what they are told, regardless of the name of their job. An engineer works in the shops if he has any time left in his day. And he is not a thing as overworked as a man is designed to create in the factory.

The pending bill to abolish the Labor Board is designed to compel "recognition" of the national unions, with particular intent to continue their "feathered" rules. On one of the leading railways there are forty-four rules designed to restrict service within classification and thirty-five rules to enforce duplicate payments for a single service. There are scores of other rules for classifications designed to increase pay, or to pay for work not done, or to monopolize jobs for the unions. Henry Ford could not produce either service or profits under such rules. He is able to defy the railway unions because he pays higher wages than the unions ask or the Labor Board allows. That is his second explanation of his railway method. He has no labor disputes and therefore the Labor Board has no power over him. His minimum pay is about $25 monthly above the general average of the highest class railways, but his men earn their wages. He began by dismissing 1,200 men, and now employs about 300 fewer than the previous company. To transport 2,500,000 more tons, Mr. Ford says that he worked his wonders with the aid of a single million of capital. It appears that he needed in his operation proportionately about as much new capital as other railways. His result is creditable, but not markedly better than the improvement on the change from Federal administration to private operation. There could not be a plainer lesson against reversing that "progress" back to Federal operation. Its object is to "make work" for the mass by reducing it for individuals. Henry Ford's way is to increase production by making individuals earn their pay.—New York Times.

MORE NEIGHBORLINESS

The British government in seeking, by way of negotiation with the state department, to provide a remedy for an unintentional wrong which certain American legislation has done British women.

The American law providing for the separate naturalization of women and decreeing that a woman does not acquire or lose citizenship by marriage leaves a British woman who marries an American a woman without a country as long as she resides under the British flag.

The British authorities consider her an American and the American consul says she is not.

The inconvenience becomes especially great if she desires to leave the country, although there are many other disadvantages and legal disabilities connected with her status.

The remedy sought, by agreement with the state department, is to entitle such a woman, for passport purposes only, to be considered an American citizen in accordance with common international law and thus straighten out the tangle.

It follows in a sense the precedent of the liquor treaty, which also sought to smooth out a wrinkle in the jointure of international and American law.

It is an invitation in the line of international comity for America to relieve a grievance without sacrificing the principle embodied in its own statute.—Philadelphia Evening Bulletin.

BELGIUM SERVES ITS OWN

The government of Belgium has undertaken on its own behalf to examine all Belgians who propose to emigrate to the United States. Those who fail to come up to the standards which will be required of them at Ellis island are stopped in Belgium from embarking for this country. The result is a proper service to the people of Belgium by the Belgian government, as well as valuable assistance to this country.

Other European countries appear less loyal to their citizens and less ready to co-operate with the United States in the matter of immigration. At least one of the larger countries has been charged with encouraging the immigration of undesirable who, if Ellis island preserved full vigilance, could not hope to get into this country.

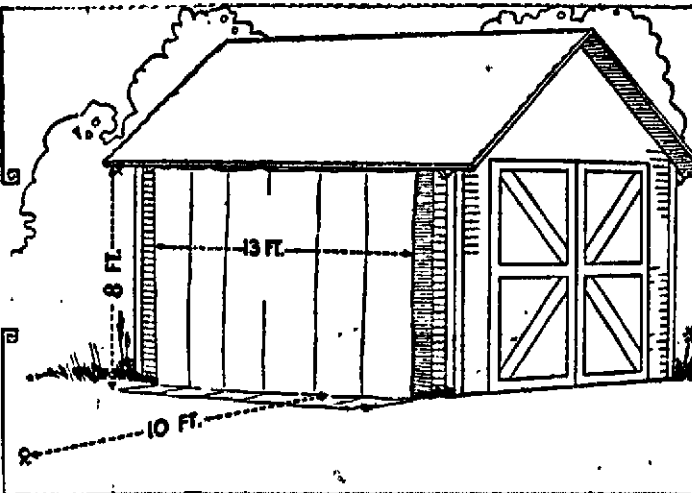

Until immigrants enter the United States they have a right to expect protection from their native land. The Belgian is a Belgian until he is taken out of his naturalization papers in the United States. If there is danger that he may be forced to undergo sad disappointment and sorrow by being turned back at Ellis island, then he has a right to expect his home land to protect him from that disappointment and sorrow. Belgium, it appears, appreciates this duty, which she owes to her own people who are still her own even though they contemplate taking up homes in the United States. It would be better for all concerned if other European countries displayed as sensible and conscientious an interest in their emigrating people.—Grand Rapids Herald.

TURN YARD INTO A GOLF COURSE

Backyard Playgrounds

By W. C. Batchelor

The modern playground is not considered complete without some provision for adult play, and the backyard playground is no exception.

The one major sport which is actively interesting more men and women than any other at the present time is golf. The game may easily be adapted to the back yard!

Any level spot, either grass or bare ground, will provide space for a putting green. If bare ground is used, it should be covered with a thin layer of sand. Mixing the sand with oil will prevent the wind and rain from carrying it away. The most common oil used is a half-and-half mixture of fuel oil and distillate, but oil drained from the crank case of an automobile will do.

For the hole a can should be sunk flush with the ground—a tomato can or any similar can about 4 1/2 inches in diameter.

A net for driving practice is just as easily constructed. A piece of canvas 12 feet wide, hung from the edge of the garage roof to the ground, is all that is necessary. Eyelets should be placed along the upper edge so that the canvas can be hung from nails driven in the end of each rafter. It should be left loose at the bottom but should touch the ground. Any awning dealer will make such a net according to your specifications for approximately $10.00, or a tarpaulin commonly known as a "waxen sheet" is suitable for this purpose and may be purchased at any hardware store. Made of 10-ounce duck, 10 by 13 feet, the cost is approximately $7.50.

The ball should be driven from a point directly in front of the net and not more than 10 feet away. If the canvas is loose at the bottom, there will be no rebound.

For the particularly "wild" golfer, it may be necessary to add another yard to the width of the net, but 12 or 13 feet will be found sufficient for the average "dub."

A golf ball attached to a stake with a cord and spring, known as the "captive golf ball," is also a practical device for backyard driving practice. This is sold by sporting goods dealers for about $1.75. Copyright, 1924, by W. C. Batchelor

ADVENTURE OF THE TWINS

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

"I want to buy one of those new things," said Ringtail Coon, coming into Mister Bags' store one day and marching up to the counter.

"What new things?" laughed Nancy. "Do you suppose we sell old things in this store, Mister Coon, now do you?"

Mister Coon looked kind of sheepish as he answered, "Oh, excuse me! I know that of course. But I mean one of those extra new things where you have to tack sticks on your chimney and have a lot of boards and wires sticking up into the air."

"Oh, you mean a radio set, don't you?" said Nick.

"Why, yes," said Ringtail. "I guess that's it. There's a little wooden box full of twists and knobs and screws and enough grimecracks to start a hardware store. And you let it sit on a table and turn something and it sings and talks and plays music and everything like that."

"Yes, that's a radio set you are talking about," said Mister Bags. "And you came at exactly the right time, for I have a fine one I just got in today. Here it is in the show case. It costs two dollars."

"My, my! That's a lot of money," exclaimed Mister Coon. "That's about my entire fortune. Couldn't you make it a little cheaper, Mister Storekeeper?"

"Well, I might let you have it for a dollar and ninety-nine cents," said Mister Bags, thoughtfully.

"All right!" said Ringtail Coon. "I'll take it."

"And then there was a busy time for everybody."

Nick and Nancy went home with the coon gentleman and up to the place he lived in Old Oak Apartments.

Nancy sat on the sofa and looked at Mister Coon's photograph album and Nick went outside and tacked up all the wires and queer wooden things to the tip top branches of the oak tree.

Pretty soon everything was fixed and Nick showed Mister Coon how to run it.

"If you want to hear somebody making a speech in New York, you turn the little knob this way," he said. "And if you want to hear some music in Chicago, you turn it that way."

"Goodness!" gasped Mister Coon. "Isn't that just wonderful! New York must be a mile away."

"It's hundreds of miles," said Nick.

"You don't say so!" exclaimed Mister Coon.

"Yes, sir!" said Nick. "It is. And if you like you can hear things from away across the sea. You can get Africa where the lions and tigers live just as easy as anything."

"I'd rather not," remarked Ringtail uneasily.

"That's all right," said Nick. "You can listen to anything you like." So he turned the little knob and instantly a band started to play so loudly that Mister Coon jumped.

"What's that?" he cried, running to his window and looking out. "I didn't know this was circus day."

"It isn't," laughed Nancy. "It's all coming out of your new radio set."

"Well, I declare!" gasped Mister Ringtail Coon. "Isn't that fine, though! I'll write some invitations and ask all my friends in to a party."

BARLEYCORN'S GHOST

By Albert Apple

The first man arrested in New York City for buying liquor without a permit is fined $50. The hand of the law clamped on his shoulder a few seconds after he received two pints of nosepaint in a drugstore.

Thereupon the federal authorities announced to New Yorkers that they henceforth will include liquor buyers as well as sellers in their drive against violators of the Volstead act.

If that system were enforced all over the country, jails would overflow with democracy—all the way from the pan-handling "white-liner" to a host of piously patriotic prominent citizens.

The customer, of course, incites the bootlegger to crime by furnishing the motive of the crime—profit. In any illicit traffic, buyer and seller are equally guilty. Ethically, at any rate.

Wayne B. Wheeler, lawyer for the Anti-Saloon League, points with pride to the conviction of 34,067 people in 1923 for violations of the legislation called prohibition—rather a humorous name for it in some communities.

A bit of arithmetic shows that only one in about every 3000 of the population was convicted last year.

What percentage is this of the total of violators? So small, you have to use microscopic fractions.

It's impossible entirely to prevent anything by law. We have law against murder—but some 10,000 murders are committed in America every year. The very existence of a prohibitory law indicates the prevalence of the crime at which the law is directed.

The main purpose of any law is to punish crime. Prevention is largely a matter of education. It is up to the individual. Compulsion restrains him only when the punishment is grave enough to strike terror to his heart.

This so-called prohibition problem is, today, just what it has been since the fight against liquor started—a matter of education rather than law enforcement.

As long as people want to drink, they'll be able to buy liquor—if they have the price. The real prohibition problem is thirst rather than quencher—buying rather than selling.

If the oncoming generation is prevented from acquiring the thirst, prohibition will succeed because there will not be any need for it.

LETTER FROM MRS. LESLIE PRESCOTT TO JOHN ALDEN PRESCOTT

My Husband:

Of course I will be home for our wedding anniversary. I did not think I was going to stay here in New York as long as this, but you see, dear, one's parents do not come home from a long stay in Europe every day.

Three eventful years! Why, Jack, it seems as though I have always been married to you—that you and little Jack have always been a part of my life. Our whirlwind courtship and hasty marriage are only snatches of memory today.

When I get back from New York to you, dear, I am going to look over again those love letters which you wrote me before the wedding. Do you remember them, or are the jokes in the newspapers true?

I kept them all, all those beautiful love letters, in which you told me how desperately lonely you were without me. I remember one paragraph in particular. After telling me that you did not think you could live through those weeks which would intervene before you could come and claim me, you said: "And to think that three weeks ago, my darling, I did not know there was such a girl as you in all the world."

I kissed those words, Jack, and thought no girl had ever had a more beautiful love letter.

And when you came! I remember the very thrill that almost took my breath away completely. As I write tonight I feel your arms about me as they were that day, your kisses on my lips, your caressing words of love.

Perhaps you have forgotten the thrill of that kiss, husband mine. You had had many love affairs before you met me. I found out after we were married, and at that very time you were wondering how you could get your letters back from Paula Perrier—the Paula Perrier who has played such an important part in our wedded life.

Had I known of her at that time, Jack, I am sure I would never have married you. I wonder, if I had known it, and not married you, would I have married Karl Whitney, my childhood sweetheart, and now been juggling along in luxury with him? Instead, as you know, he's going to marry my sister Alice.

You would not know Alice, Jack. During her years, abroad she has grown up into a most egotistical young person who lets me see how very superior she is to me. I am a little sorry for Karl, for he is almost sure to be managed until he is miserable.

You said in your letter that Sydney Carton is going to visit us as soon as I get back home. I hope this is true, but you know how many times he has made you such a promise.

I am glad he is coming to us. Having only seen him once, I want to know him better. I've got some spiffy new clothes to charm him with, I want him to like me, for I have an idea that he is the most loyal and splendid man I have ever met.

Do you remember, dear, that Italian old cat of a Priscilla Bradford, and how nearly she came to breaking up our marriage? She did at least prejudice your mother. Very much against me. She wanted to marry you herself. I wonder where "Dear Priscilla," as your mother used to call her, is now.

Kate was kind to you, Jack dear, as well as to me. Until quite a while after we were married she kept me ignorant of Paula Perrier. I really thought I was the only girl you had ever loved, and on my wedding day I was perfectly happy—so happy that my friend and maid of honor, Beatrice Grimshaw, told me she was afraid I could never keep on living on the heights, in the rarified air of ecstatic bliss with which I seemed to have surrounded myself—and I could not, she thought, have known that no one ever can live in a constant ecstasy of bliss, yet tonight I feel our love has really been something very beautiful. I know, however, that married life, like everything else, needs perspective.

Ah, husband mine, tonight as I sit here writing, I thank God that I was too much in love with you to let the greatest unhappiness and the greatest happiness that has ever come into my life, separate us. That was John, as well as you, and although he is only mine by addition, and you are his father in reality, yet I am sure that you do not love him as much as I.

I shall be glad when I return because I want to feel his little arms about me, I want to feel his little wet mouth pressed close to mine. I used to think at first, dear John, that I could not bear to feel that he was your child born in love unsanctioned by the world. But I must not write about the future, because I do not want to live over those sad days tonight. I only want to look forward to our life together when I have become a habit to you—one you cannot break, one you do not want to break.

Goodnight, dear one, LESLIE.

Junior-Senior Nurses Banquet Held Saturday

Places were laid for 43 at the Junior-Senior banquet of the Bismarck Hospital training classes, which was held at the Grand Pacific hotel Saturday evening, May 31.

The long table was beautifully decorated with baskets of roses to which were attached streamers of the Junior class colors, gold and white, leading to place cards for each guest, where novel nut baskets completed the pretty scheme of decorating.

The Junior-Senior banquet marked the first of the social activities of the graduation class for the year, which is composed of twenty members.

Graduation exercises proper will begin next Sunday evening with the baccalaureate, sermon which will be held in the city auditorium at 8 o'clock, at which Rev. G. B. Kimmel, D. D. of Naperville, Illinois will deliver the baccalaureate sermon. Monday evening the commencement exercises will be held at the auditorium and the nurses will receive their diplomas, marking the close of their three years training in the hospital classes. The commencement addresses will be given by Judge W. L. Nussle and Rev. G. B. Kimmel, D. D.

A formal reception will be tendered the nurses on Monday evening following the commencement exercises, in the dining room at the hospital. A musical program has been arranged for this reception which will be attended by friends and relatives of the graduates, the medical and surgical staff of the hospital and members of the hospital association.

The program following the banquet, Saturday evening was a most interesting one. Miss P. Eling of the Junior class presided as toastmistress and opened the program with a toast to the individual seniors. Miss Attie Greve played two piano solos which were followed by a reading by Miss L. Meland. Miss A. Eggee, Superintendent of nurses gave her parting advice to the seniors to which Miss Eling responded on behalf of the seniors.

"Dietetics in the Nursing Profession," was the subject of an interesting talk given by Miss Orvold, dietitian at the hospital. In this talk she explained how theories that had been taught in the classroom would and should be applied practically when the nurses were on duty and thereby help each other to make the most of her profession.

"The Seniors From a Junior's Viewpoint," by Miss Nilsson was followed by a humorous reading by Miss Brown and a vocal solo by Miss Johnson who responded to a hearty encore. "The Class of 1924" was the subject of a witty toast by Miss Gustafsen, R. N.

Miss Sara Sand then delightfully entertained the class with an account of a number of places in which duty had taken her since she had finished her training. Her glowing account of different parts of America, her privilege to see some of the largest collections of art and ancient cathedrals, which are historically great, while on duty in Europe, helped the graduates to realize that the vocation they had selected would prove most interesting and permit of opportunities to enlarge their horizon.

The colors of the order, purple and white were used in decorating the dining room.

Mr. A. Lampe and his sister furnished excellent music during the banquet hour.

A program of talks and musical numbers had been prepared by Mrs. Wm. Laist, Grand Regent, Mrs. C. B. Whitney presiding at toastmistress.

Miss Julia Johnson rendered a piano solo as an opening number on the program and Rev. ## REGISTER NOW—HELP BOOST THE JUVENILE BAND

The Juvenile Band, which now comprises a membership of 55 members (this includes the advanced and the present beginner's band) is a perpetual and growing organization. In order that it be a growing organization, new members or recruits will be wanted as time goes on. There are cities, half as large as Bismarck, throughout this country that have Juvenile bands of over 100 members. Los Angeles has over 120 Juvenile or Grade School orchestras, comprising a total membership of 3,000 children, whose ages range from 6 to 16. There are wonderful opportunities for children to learn music and instrument playing in front of the progressive cities of this country today—and Bismarck is no exception.

This is Registration Week for prospective members of the new beginners' class which will begin actual meetings next Saturday afternoon at 1:30 P. M. On the first day of registration there were 16 names listed, a good beginning. Let's have more! Remember, there is no charge for instruction. All the children need is an instrument, which can be procured very cheaply, second-hand, and the spirit and willingness to meet regularly and practice.

Mr. Sorlien will be glad to see anyone interested in joining the Juvenile Band at the Will School between the hours of 1 and 3 P. M. any day this week. Anyone that is unable to confer with him there, can make arrangements to see him anytime by phoning either 285 or 357-R.

TRADE RECORD

OUR LACE IMPORTATIONS

They have totaled $750,000, 000 since the beginning of 1920 and with duties added would approximate a billion dollars. Growing demand has resulted in establishment of lace factories in U. S. now turning out values equal to those imported.

While $26,000,000 worth of laces, while the imports of the entire group "laces, embroideries, etc." in that year were $27,000,000, indicating that domestic production is now about equal to the importation. This development of the art of lace making in the United States is one of very recent years, the value of the return in 1921 being actually double that of 1914, only seven years earlier, while the capital invested in lace factories in this country advanced from $21,000,000 in 1914 to over $32,000,000 in 1919, the latest year in which the capitalization of the factories is officially shown by census reports.

Where do they come from, this $750,000,000 worth of laces which have entered the country since 1900? Chiefly from Europe and, in far less quantities, from the extreme Orient. In 1920, the year of the biggest imports since the beginning of the war, our imports of the official group, "laces, embroideries, etc." were from France alone 11 1/2 million dollars. Great Britain nearly 5 million, Switzerland 5 million, Germany 1 1/2 million, Italy 1 1/2 million, China 2 1/3 million, Japan 1 1/3 million, and from that tiny Portuguese island in the Atlantic, Madeira, 2 1/3 million dollars worth.

In 1923, the latest year for which details are available, the total imports of "laces, embroideries, etc." were $26,679,000 of which those of cotton were $17,041,000, silk $4,844,000 and of fibers $4,728,000. Of the $756,481,235 of "laces, embroideries, etc." imported since the beginning of the fiscal year 1900, $600,000,000 were of cotton, $110,000,000 of silk and $46,000,000 of fibers. Hand made laces form a comparatively small proportion of the imports, the total value of hand made cotton laces imported since the beginning of 1912, the year of earliest record, having been a little over $10,000,000, while that of cotton laces during that period was $247,000,000. Even in silk and fiber laces the hand made product forms but a comparatively small percentage of the total.

Curiously, but a very small share of the silk laces imported come from the Orient, the chief silk producing section of the world, since of the $7,523,000 worth of silk laces, embroideries, etc. imported in the high record year of 1920, $2 million dollars worth were from France, 1 1/4 millions from the United Kingdom, and less than a half million from Japan and China, the chief silk producing countries of the world. Most of the laces imported from the Orient are of cotton. Hand made laces while forming as already indicated a small proportion of the total imports are apparently growing in favor, the total imports of hand made cotton laces having advanced from $1,145,000 in 1912 to $2,165,000 in 1923.

Apparently silk and fiber laces are making more rapid gains in popularity in the United States than those of cotton. The official figures of imports of the entire group "laces, embroideries, etc." show an advance in those of silk and fibers from $7,850,000 in 1912 to $9,626,000 in 1923, while those of cotton show a fall from $38,190,000 in 1912 to $17,014,000 in 1923.

GIBBONS MAY MEET GREB IN JULY 4 FIGHT

Tommy Is Sought Either For Middleweight Champion or Young Stribling

TOM WINS WITH EASE

Chicago, June 2.—Tommy Gibbons, by virtue of his impressive victory over Georges Carpentier Saturday in ten rounds at Michigan City, probably will meet Harry Greb, world's middleweight champion, or Young Stribling, the Georgia light heavyweight, at Michigan City, July 4, according to information in sports circles. Greb would make an excellent match for Gibbons, it is believed, since he defeated the St. Paul Irishman in a 15-round fight in New York in 1922. There would be little weight difference, as both could make around 170.

Gibbons beat Carpentier in every round except one, in the 10-round fight Saturday, and this was even. However, Tommy missed something in not being able to knock out the Frenchman. If he had, he would have been in better shape to demand a return match with Dempsey.

Barring a slight alteration under the left eye, where Carpentier clipped him with a right uppercut, Gibbons did not bear any marks of battle. He is well pleased with his showing against the Frenchman and thinks he now is entitled to another match with Champion Jack Dempsey.

"Carpenter sure can hit with his right hand," Gibbons said. "In the fourth round he struck me with one of the hardest blows I ever received." Tommy continued, "The punch did not catch me on the chin as many of the boxing men gathered at the ringside thought it did, but on the cheek bone just below the left eye.

"Blow Clouded Brain
"I thought somebody had slammed me with one of the ring posts. The blow stunned me for several seconds, but I immediately clinched until my brain had cleared. It probably was a good thing that blow didn't land flush on the point of my chin. I was careful not to stop any more rights than I had to after that.

"Georges did crack me on the jaw several times with rights during the remainder of the contest but I either was going away or turned my head so that I did not receive the full shock of punches. I think Carpentier hits as hard as Dempsey with his right.

Gibbons was asked why he did not press his advantage when Carpentier sprained his right ankle in the ninth round and hobbled around looking as though he wanted to quit.

"I had been tipped off to be on the lookout by the Frenchman and I thought possibly he feined his injury in order to coax me to walk wide open and let him nail me on the chin with a right hand."

WASHINGTON'S 110-YEAR-OLD STAFF

By Billy Evans
Youth must be served is an old and usually truthful adage in the world of sport.

There are exceptions, however, to every rule. This holds good for the pitching staff of the Washington club of the American League for this year.

Manager Stanley Harris of the Nationals is rebuilding his ball club. Naturally the pitching staff is receiving much consideration. He feels that he has a number of promising twirling recruits.

Marberry Looks Good
Only recently President Clarke Griffith was reported to have expressed the opinion that in Fred Marberry he had a second Walter Johnson. In a number of games the big southerner has showed a lot of stuff but he has had his troubles winning.

Going to the relief of other pitchers he has been of great value, but it has been much of a showing in the games won column. Twice he has rescued the great Walter Johnson and saved the day.

Paul Zahniser is another youngster with plenty of stuff. He figured to be a big winner for the Nationals, but wildness has been his great handicap.

Speece, a rookie with Carl Mays delivery, looks like a good bet. He seems to lack only experience.

While the youthful Washington pitchers show great promise they have had troubles winning ball games. Youth isn't exactly being served from a pitching standpoint, as far as Washington's concerned.

Griff's Veteran Pitchers Star
As a matter of fact the Washington players refer to their pitching staff as the 110-year-old pitching staff.

The players have reference to Walter Johnson, George Mogridge and Joe Martina. This trio comprises Washington's 110-year-old pitching staff, as the players call it, although the actual age of the three is only 106.

The great Walter Johnson is 37. The veteran George Mogridge confesses to 35, while Joe Martina admits to 33, making him the oldest rookie to ever make good in the big show.

Youth usually holds sway in sport, but with the Washington staff, Johnson, Mogridge and Mar-

GIBBONS MAY MEET GREB IN JULY 4 FIGHT

Tommy Is Sought Either For Middleweight Champion or Young Stribling

TOM WINS WITH EASE

Chicago, June 2. Tommy Gibbons, by virtue of his impressive victory over Georges Carpentier Saturday night in the rounds at Michigan City, probably will meet Harry Greb, world middleweight champion, or Young Stribling, the Georgia light heavyweight, at Michigan City, July 4, according to information in sports circles. Greb would make an excellent match for Gibbons, it is believed, since he defeated the St. Paul Irishman in a 15-round fight in New York in 1922. There would be little weight difference, as both could make around 170.

Gibbons beat Carpentier in every round except one, in the 10-round fight Saturday, and this was even. However, Tommy missed something in not being able to knock out the Frenchman. If he had, he would have been in better shape to demand a return match with Dempsey.

Barring a slight abrasion under the left eye, where Carpentier clipped him with a right uppercut, Gibbons did not bear any marks of battle. He is well pleased with his showing against the Frenchman and thinks he now is entitled to another match with Champion Jack Dempsey.

"Carpenter sure can hit with his right hand," Gibbons said. "In the fourth round he struck me with one of the hardest blows I ever received." Tommy continued. "The punch did not catch me on the chin as many of boxing writers gathered at the ringside thought it did, but on the cheek bone just below the left eye."

Blow Clouded Brain
"I thought somebody had slammed me with one of the ring posts. The blow stunned me for several seconds, but I immediately clinched until my brain had cleared. It probably was a good thing that blow didn't land flush on the point of my chin. I was careful not to stop any more rights than I had to after that."

"Georges did crack me on the jaw several times with rights during the remainder of the contest but I either was going away or turned my head so that I did not receive the full shock of punches. I think Carpentier hits as hard as Dempsey with his right."

Gibbons was asked why he did not press his advantage when Carpentier sprained his right ankle in the ninth round and hobbled around looking as though he wanted to quit.

WASHINGTON'S 110-YEAR-OLD STAFF

By Billy Evans
Youth must be served in an old and usually truthful adage in the world of sport.

There are exceptions, however, to every rule.

This holds good for the pitching staff of the Washington club of the American League for this year.

Manager Stanley Harris of the Nationals is rebuilding his ball club. Naturally the pitching staff is receiving much consideration. He feels that he has a number of promising young recruits.

Marberry Looks Good
Only recently President Clarke Griffith was reported to have expressed the opinion that in Fred Marberry he had a second Walter Johnson. In a number of games the big southerner has showed a lot of stuff but he has had his troubles winning.

Going to the relief of other pitchers he has been of great value, but it has been a difficult matter for him to make much of a showing in the games won column. Twice he has rescued the great Walter Johnson and saved the day.

Paul Zahner is another youngster with plenty of stuff. He figured to be a big winner for the Nationals, but wildness has been his great handicap.

Specie, a rookie with Carl Mays delivery, looks like a good bet. He seems to lack only experience.

While the youthful Washington pitchers show great promise they also have troubles winning ball games. Youth isn't exactly being served from a pitching standpoint, as far as Washington's concern.

Griff's Veterans Pitchers Star
As a matter of fact the Washington players refer to the pitching staff as the 110-year-old pitching staff. The players are referring to Walter Johnson, George Mogridge and Joe Martina. This trio comprises Washington's 110-year-old pitching staff, as the players call it, although the actual age of the three is only 106.

The great Walter Johnson is 37. The veteran George Mogridge commences to 35, while Joe Martina admits to 33, making him the oldest of the trio. They make good in the big show.

Youth usually holds sway in sport, but with the Washington staff, Johnson, Mogridge and Mar-

LOCALS TAKE GOOD BASEBALL GAME IN NINTH

Bismarck Independent Team Defeats Fast Linton Baseball Team

The fast Linton ball team went down to defeat at the hands of the Bismarck Independents at the local park yesterday to the tune of 8 to 7. Sorbin, pitching his first game for Bismarck, had the edge on Volk of Linton, holding Linton to one hit and no runs for the first five innings, while Bismarck was gathering 3 hits and 2 runs. In the sixth inning, Linton tied the score on a hit, walk and hit. Linton put across another score in the first of the seventh, but Bismarck came back with three. In the eighth Linton scored once, making it 5 to 4 in Bismarck's favor at the start of the ninth. In the ninth a hit, walk, followed by a home run by Wood gave Linton three scores and a lead of 2. Baumgardner went in for Volk and a walk, error and hit by pitcher put three on for Bismarck. Another walk forced in a run and Fitch drove a clean hit to the outfield scoring the two runs to win.

The Linton team is composed of a fine bunch of clean ball players and the game was free from disputes or wrangling of any kind. This was Bismarck's first game, and while the play was a little rancid in spots, with a little practice there should be no trouble in putting a team into the field that will be able to hold its own with any team in this part of the state.

The crowd was not large enough to satisfy Manager George Smith, who is trying to give the city a good independent team, and he hopes fans will turn out stronger in the future to make possible steady improvement in the team.

It was apparent by the attitude of the star batsman that he desired to work on the rookie pitcher.

The star came slowly to the plate.

Knowing that the rookie was on edge, anxious to have the game decided one way or the other. It was his thought to make him even more anxious.

Turning his back to the pitcher he knocked the dirt from his cleats, rubbed his hand in the dirt around the home plate, and then for some time swung the three bats that he was carrying.

The rookie pitcher was simply a bunch of nerves. He stood on the rubber, ready to pitch but the star simply ignored him. The situation was apparently getting on his nerves.

Finally he got into the batter's box, ready to hit. He did so after deciding the pitcher was about as unnerved as he possibly could be.

The star had seemingly accomplished his purpose.

Now comes the spot where old Mr. Psychology proves he is a fickle person.

At this stage, the veteran catcher of the team in the field, calls for time just as the star batsman gets into the box. Walking out to the pitcher, he remarked:

"This is a tougher spot for the batter than you. Every one expects you to get out of the hole. He's worrying more than you think he is."

Cross him, up. Bust the first one over the plate with everything you got. Get him in the hole."

Those few words seemed to steady the rookie pitcher. He put the first one over for a called strike, had the batter in the hole. The star not the rookie was worried.

The catcher, by his timely interruption, had undone the work of the star batter, by his tedious delay, and changed the complexion of the situation.

On the next ball pitched the batsman fouled out and the game was over, the rookie had won the decision over the star. The veteran catcher beat him at his own game.

Finally he got into the batter's box, ready to hit. He did so after deciding the pitcher was about as unnerved as he possibly could be.

TRADE RECORD OUR LACE IMPORTATIONS

They have totaled $750,000, 000 since the beginning of 1920 and with duties added would approximate a billion dollars. Growing demand has resulted in establishment of lace factories in U. S. now turning out values equal to those imported.

Recent efforts to revive the production of hand made laces in certain sections of Europe are of interest to the people of the United States who have paid approximately a billion dollars for foreign laces and embroideries in the past 25 years. Compilations by the Trade Record of The National City Bank of New York show that the value of laces imported since the beginning of the fiscal year 1900 is in round terms $750,000,000, and if we add to this the duties paid when the merchandise was withdrawn from the custom houses the total would approximate and perhaps exceed a billion dollars.

Meantime as a result of the growing demand for this class of merchandise the manufacture of laces has been established in the United States and our American lace factories now turn out laces of an annual value nearly as great as the value of the laces imported. The forty odd lace factories of this country which now represent an investment of over $30,000,000, turned out in 1921, the latest year for which official returns are available, $26,000,000 worth of laces, while the imports of the entire group "laces, embroideries, etc." in that year were $27,000,000, indicating that domestic production is now about equal to the importation.

This development of the art of lace making in the United States is one of very recent years, the value of the output in 1921 being actually double that of 1914, only seven years earlier, while the capital invested in lace factories in this country advanced from $21,000,000 in 1914 to over $32,000,000 in 1921, the latest year in which the capitalization of the factories is officially shown by census reports.

Where do they come from, this $750,000,000 worth of laces which have entered the country since 1900? Chiefly from Europe and, for less quantities, from the extreme Orient. In 1920, the year of the biggest imports since the beginning of the war, our imports of the official group, "laces, embroideries, etc." were from France alone 11 1/2 million dollars, Great Britain nearly 8 million, Switzerland 5 million, Germany 1 1/2 million, Italy 1 1/2 million, China 2 1/3 million, Japan 1 1/3 million, and from that tiny Portuguese island in the Atlantic, Madeira, 2 1/3 million dollars worth. In 1923, the latest year for which details are available, the total imports of "laces, embroideries, etc." were $26,637,000, of which those of cotton were $17,041,000, silk $8,844,000, and of fibers $4,728,000. Of the $26,637,000, $1,235,000, or 4.6 percent, imported since the beginning of the fiscal year 1900, show a fall from $38,190,000 in 1912 to $17,041,000 in 1923.

Curiously, but a very small share of the silk laces imported come from the Orient, the chief silk producing section of the world, since of the $7,532,000 worth of silk laces, embroideries, etc. imported in the high record year 1920 514 million dollars worth were from France, 1 1/4 millions from the United Kingdom, and less than a half million from Japan and China, the chief silk producing countries of the world. Most of the laces imported from the Orient are of cotton. Hand made laces while forming as already indicated a small proportion of the total imports are apparently growing in favor, the total imports of hand made cotton laces having advanced from $1,145,000 in 1912 to $2,165,000 in 1923.

Apparently silk and fiber laces are making more rapid gains in popularity in the United States than those of cotton. The official figures of imports of the entire group "laces, embroideries, etc." show an advance in these of silk and fibers from $7,850,000 in 1912 to $9,626,000 in 1923, while those of cotton show a fall from $38,190,000 in 1912 to $17,041,000 in 1923.

CITY STAYS IN HELENA AREA IN M. E. CHURCH

Forward Steps Taken By Methodists at Springfield, Says Rev. Halfyard

Rev. S. E. Halfyard, pastor of the McCabe Methodist Episcopal church, who has returned from Springfield, Mass., where he attended the quadrennial general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, expressed belief today that important forward policies were adopted by the church. Reports at the conference, he said, showed the church moving ahead in membership and in opening up new fields of endeavor, and a large program was outlined for the next quadrennium.

Other North Dakotans at the conference were: Rev. J. S. Wilds of Valley City; Judge C. A. Pollock of Fargo; R. S. Johnston of Mandan; Rev. H. S. Harris of Grand Forks and Dr. Fawcett of Starkweather. The important actions of the conference, Rev. Halfyard said, included:

Steps for the unification of the Methodist churches, north and south. Reorganization of the benevolent boards of the church.

Lifting of the amusement ban. Rev. Halfyard said he was especially impressed by the tremendous sentiment against war displayed. The question of fundamentalism against modernism was not fought over in the conference as in some other churches. Rev. Halfyard expressed the opinion that the prevailing sentiment was somewhat modernist.

On the whole, he said, the conference, which is held once every four years, was conservative, with no radical changes except the lifting of the amusement ban. Nevertheless, he said, the conference took forward steps for the extension of the church, and took no backward steps.

North Dakota, he said, remains in the Helena area, efforts to include it in the St. Paul area failing. Bishop Lester Smith will succeed Bishop Burns at Helena, the latter going to San Francisco. The conference he said, got representation on the various boards.

AT THE MOVIES

AT THE CAPITOL

Predictions are being made that the screening of Charles Chaplin's own story in "A Woman of Paris," starring Edna Purviance, will stand forth in motion picture history as an epochal event that will exert a strong influence on the present day photodrama.

The theme is a startling one, and made the more so because of the utter simplicity and warmth of feeling that permeates it. It presents a problem dealing with the basics and fundamentals of life, commenting upon it in an interesting fashion rather than attempting to solve it.

While the story is of life as studied by Charles Chaplin, it is in no wise deals with the life of Chaplin but with the lives of others as seen by him. And as in actual life there is comedy, tragedy, passion, absurdity, melodrama, farce, emotionalism, cynicism—all these Chaplin has combined as ingredients of life in "A Woman of Paris." At the same time he has woven an exquisite tapestry portraying the sincerity of a woman's soul in all its nakedness though clothed in its individuality.

Dealing with lives and types that he knows, Chaplin brings to the screen his first contribution to the serious drama a story as old as that of Adam and Eve yet presented with such convincing understanding and treatment that it will be a revelation in the art of photodramatics. The entire story and production, conceived and produced by this master cinema genius promises to reveal a treatment of a vital problem, presented with extreme simplicity yet with an unbounded psychological force that will have a new trail along the highway of motion picture progress.

"A Woman of Paris" will be presented at the Capitol theatre starting tonight, being the first Charles Chaplin production to be released through United Artists corporation, the combined organization of the foremost stars and producers of the motion picture industry, Mary Pickford, Charles Chaplin, Douglas Fairbanks and D. W. Griffith.

THE ELTINGE

The Pola Negri of "Passion" has returned.

In the production of "Shadows of Paris," which shows today and tomorrow at the Eltinge theatre, the star once more comes into her own. She is quite her old self as Claire, leader of the Apache bands of the Parisian underworld. Then there is Charles de Roche as her Apache lover, who is called away to war and falsely reported killed; Huntley Gordon as Raoul whom Claire, posing as a Polish war widow, marries; and Adolphe Menjou as Raoul's secretary and friend—all are featured and all give excellent accounts of themselves.

The story is one of the upper and lower world of Paris, the playground of the entire world. It is a colorful and appealing tale, an adaptation of the French play, "Mon Homme," by the author of "Kiki."

Gareth Hughes and Vera Reynolds head the strong support.

NEW RELIEF PLAN URGED

Kentucky Senator Would Reduce Some Tariff Duties

Washington, June 2.—(By the A. P.)—A reduction of 50 per cent in tariff duties on products exchangeable for farm products is the latest legislative proposal for farm relief put forward today by Senator Stanley, Democrat, Kentucky.

He introduced a bill which would amend the tariff act to that effect and also a joint resolution to give the President authority to determine when an emergency existed warranting such action. The reduced duty would apply only to goods imported by competitive associations, not run for profit.

KIWANIANS IN SCHOOL TODAY

Members of Board of Education Club Guests

Today the Kiwanians went to school.

Members of the board of education of the city schools were guests of the club at the weekly luncheon in the McKenzie hotel, together with Supt. Dickinson of the Indian school. Mr. Dickinson spoke upon the work of the Indian girl, where many Indian girls are receiving an education at the hands of the government. Recently the members of the Kiwanis club were entertained at the school.

Supt. H. O. Saxvik of the city schools and A. P. Lehnart, president of the school board, spoke upon the method of conducting the business of the city schools.

J. P. Wagner presided at the meeting. Dr. J. O. Aranson, Scott Cameron and L. E. Birdzell were named delegates to the district conference in Chisholm, Minnesota.

WASHBURN TO FINISH SCHOOL AT $10,000 COST

Washburn, N. D., June 2.—Bids for the completion of the Washburn school-house, were let, states M. E. McCurdy, president of the school board, and the work will start immediately after this school term is closed, which is June 6.

Three different bids were let, which cover everything to make the building a complete and modern one. Since the building was erected the upper story was never finished, but now it will be completed, as well as, a modern heating system installed, a modern ventilating system and toilet rooms. The cost of the whole work will be about $10,000, which the board considered a very good bid. Three years ago, when the board advertised for bids the lowest figure the building could have been completed for was around $21,000. This makes a very substantial saving that the board has made for the district by waiting.

The construction work was let to F. O. Anderson, of Bismarck, the plumbing and heating to E. P. Schulz of the same city and the electric work to Headen Bros. of Wilton. The work is expected to be completed in time for the fall term of school.

THE SENATOR'S A GOOD PREACHER

Senator George Wharton Pepper of Pennsylvania wasn't dressed for the pulpit when asked to lead Sunday morning services during marine maneuvers at Quantico. He admits he lacks the theological qualifications, too. Nor was there any pulpit handy for him to occupy. Nevertheless the senator did his best and everybody agreed that he performed most creditably.

NORTHERN PACIFIC'S "PROSPERITY SPECIAL" OF YELLOWSTONE PARK SIGHTSEEING CARS

The largest shipment of sightseeing automobiles which has ever passed through this city, was here today on the Northern Pacific.

The special train of 40 freight cars is carrying 60 eleven-passenger touring cars, two seven-passenger cars and several trucks to Gardiner Gateway, Yellowstone Park.

"We call it the 'Prosperity tourist special,'" said the local Northern Pacific agent, M. R. McDonald "because this shipment is a forerunner of the greatest Yellowstone Park travel year in history. These new sightseeing cars will be added to the Yellowstone Park fleet, bringing the fleet to nearly 500 cars, able to carry approximately 5,000 tourists daily.

Commercially, the "Prosperity Special" has attracted nation-wide interest, because it represents the first special train load of automobiles shipped out of Cleveland by the White Company in more than two years. The feat involved half a million dollars.

H. W. Child, president of the Yellowstone Park Transportation Company, who bought the new cars, said "We need them to provide for the increase in Yellowstone Park travel this summer. When I started a stage line in Yellowstone Park 35 years ago, we used to handle about 4,000 people each summer. In 1918 this had increased to 21,000 and in 1923 to 138,000. This summer we expect between 175,000 and 200,000 visitors.

"Yellowstone's increasing popularity is due largely to this regrettable 'Vaudeville age' or 'Jazz-age' of ours. People today want variety and thrills, they want to see startling, sensational things, stupendous spectacles and gorgeous beauties. Yellowstone Park, of course, provides thrills at every turn of the road. It is nature's circus park—a continuous scenic Coney Island, with geysers for the thrills, lakes, waterfalls and canyons for beauty, mountains for inspiration and wild animals to entertain the children."
